

CLAIM BATTLE OF LODZ BLOODIEST OF THE WAR: ISSUE STILL IN DOUBT

WHILE RUSSIANS REPORT VICTORY BRITISH OBSERVERS BELIEVE SITUATION IS UNCHANGED.

AUSTRIAN FORTS HOLD

Invasion of Austria-Hungary and Sicilia Is Balked by Stubborn Resistance of Przemysl and Cracow.

The newest phase of the war, so far as was indicated by the day's dispatches, is heavy fighting in Alsace and the French have succeeded in maintaining a foothold on German territory since the opening of hostilities.

Dispatches are beginning to come in from Petrograd which give a clear view of the war in the east. They indicate that the Germans who fought their way out of the Russian trap formed a most desperate and vigorous defeat.

The heavy force southeast of Lodz, which was hemmed in, is said to have cut its way with bayonets, step by step for fifteen miles in the face of constant attacks, until it was able to rejoin the main body. This battle is described as the bloodiest and most pitiless of the war.

Italy's attitude in the European war has again become a source of concern in view of Premier Salandra's declaration that his country was in no way bound to fight with Germany and Austria, and the intimation that her loyalty to treaty obligations were questioned further, she would disclose the text of the triple alliance agreement. The German government's appointment of Prince Von Buelow, former ambassador to Rome, is interpreted by Rome dispatches as meaning that Berlin will exert strong pressure to prevent Italy from joining forces with the allies.

(By Associated Press.)

London, Dec. 5.—While reports continue to come into London that the battle of Lodz has ended in a Russian victory, any official confirmation still is lacking and it is apparent to British observers that conditions in the north of Poland are today virtually the same as they were one week ago. The German army had been saved from overwhelming defeat by the brilliant operations of General Mackensen. Details of the Lodz fighting are beginning to filter through and they easily prove it has been the most bloody struggle of the entire war. The Germans are described as fighting their way through the Russian lines over the bodies of their comrades.

Russia claims the heavy capture of prisoners in this struggle, while from Kiev comes the announcement that the fortress there is crowded with German prisoners. Incidentally Kiev reports that since the beginning of the war 120,000 soldiers and 2,500 officers have passed through Kiev as prisoners of war.

The allies have ceased claiming a tremendous victory in northern Poland, but they do assert that there has been a strategic defeat for Germany and a tactical victory for Russia.

Austrian Forts Hold.

The Russians would appear not yet to have been diverted from their attacks in Galicia, and the invasion of Hungary, but the fortresses of Przemysl and Cracow still are intact and likely to put up a stronger defense against the Russians than did the Belgian fortresses against the Germans. Unless a decisive defeat can be inflicted on the Austrian army at Czestochowa, it is argued in London, it is not probable that the Russian army of the south will be in a position to begin any serious invasion of Galicia until Cracow has been re-

An eye witness with the British forces in France reports that the both sides in West Flanders are engaged in a siege of operations and that the Germans have almost entirely abandoned their infantry assaults in force. A novel kind of warfare, requiring the hand to hand combat of an infantryman, but with entrenching and fortifying features undreamed of before the days of the present power of explosive, is a feature of the fighting along the western battle front.

Russians Aid Serbs.

An official report from Vienna advises that the advance of the Austro-Hungarian forces has been prevented by violent attacks from strong hostile forces. The report is given as to the identity of the forces, but the opinion is expressed in London that Russian aid has reached the sorely pressed Serbs. Berlin reports that such help will be longer possible for the reason that the blowing up of the great tunnel near Tschilia has blocked communication with Romania and made impossible the passage of Russian transports along the Danube.

Aviators of the allies, according to Berlin dispatches, have resumed operations by dropping bombs in the neighborhood of Freiburg and Breslau.

German Claim Progress.

GERMANS NOT AIDED BY U. S. SAYS COUNT

Ernest Von Reventlow States How France and England Are Receiving War Materials From America.

(By Associated Press.)

Berlin, Dec. 5.—The attitude of the United States is commented upon by Count Ernest Von Reventlow, the naval critic, in an article in the Tages Zeitung today, in which he says that England and France are obtaining from America material of war, while Germany is not enjoying similar assistance.

Referring to the diplomatic discussions between the United States and England concerning the holding of British warships of American cargoes as provisions contraband, Count Von Reventlow says:

"If England and France are willing to face the United States as much as possible without departing from their policy of staying neutral at the expense of small neutrality nations, the reason is that both countries have ordered many millions of dollars worth of war material in the United States and that American industry is working feverishly to supply the wants of both these warring nations from woolen covers, shoes and horse-shoes up to considerable submarine armaments. A submarine transacted in parts according to the trans-Atlantic viewpoint, does not constitute contraband of war, nor does the fabrication thereof for the use of neutrals. Enough, these are business considerations which naturally dominate the idea of contraband, and the treatment of the American commercial

GALE DRIVES GERMAN LLOYD SHIP ASHORE

Steamer Prince Frederick Wilhelm, Caught in Norway Port When War Broke Out, Is Wrecked.

(By Associated Press.)

Bergen, Norway, via London, Dec. 5.—The North German Lloyd liner Prince Frederick Wilhelm, which has been lying in this port for some time, drifted ashore this morning. She is now fast on a sandbank.

The Prince Frederick Wilhelm, a vessel of 9,840 tons, was engaged before the war in regular service of the North German Lloyd line between Bremen and New York. After the outbreak of hostilities she was unable to enter a German port and has been at Bergen and neighboring port of Hodde.

"Our operations in Poland are taking a normal course,"

"La Corriere Del Terre estimates that the losses among the French troops amount to at least fifty per cent of those engaged in the war, and that losses of even greater proportions have been suffered by the territorial."

Rheims Again Bombed.

Paris, Dec. 5.—The official French communication given out in Paris this afternoon says that north of the Lys the French troops have made perceptible progress, advancing at one point for a distance of five hundred yards. The French resisted successfully the Germans' efforts to have artillery to drive them back. Rethiem, also, has been bombed and the French heavy artillery has been used with success against the earth positions of the enemy. In the Argonne the fighting is being waged hotly.

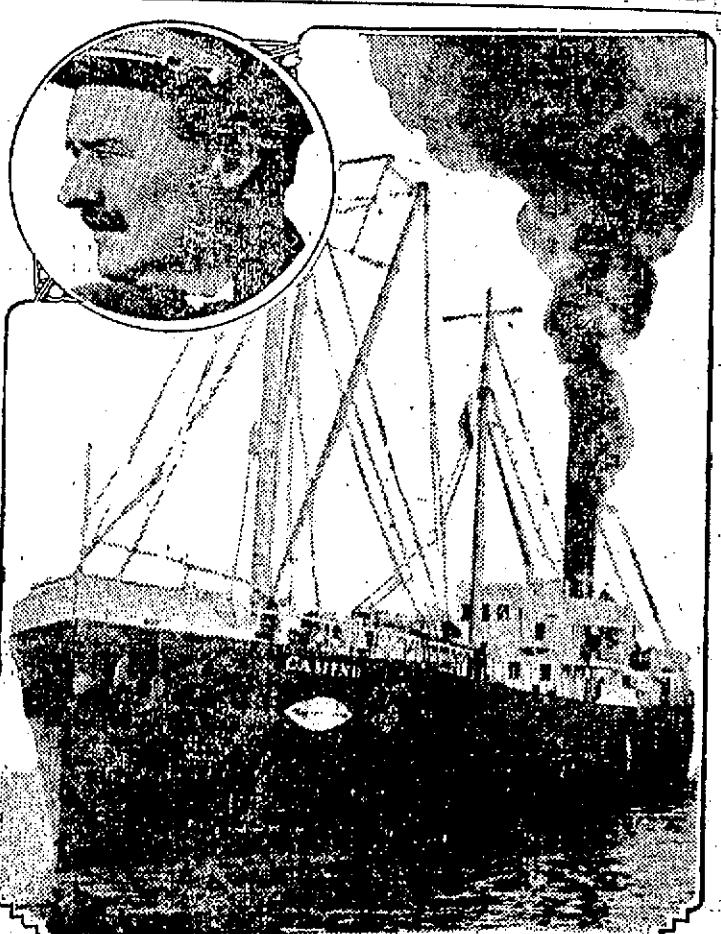

War's Bloodiest Battle.

Petrograd via London, Dec. 5.—The most tragic moment of the fighting about Lodz thus far, it is reported, occurred between Tuszyn and Byczyna, southerly of Lodz. Heavy German forces, which had penetrated to Tuszyn, it appears, were surrounded and obliged to fight their way to Brzeziny to unite the main body. The Russians essayed counter attack after attack to prevent the junction, but the Germans cut a passage at the point of the bayonet for a distance of three miles.

This battle is called the bloodiest and most pitiless fight of the war. Ninety per cent of the German officers were put out of action and many regiments had less than 100 men left. The fighting lasted 36 hours. The Germans fell, but their comrades pushed forward over the bodies and hurled themselves against the Russians.

The allies have ceased claiming a tremendous victory in northern Poland, but they do assert that there has been a strategic defeat for Germany and a tactical victory for Russia.

British Ambassador at Washington Receives Information of Mexican's Supposed Intentions.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Dec. 5.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, informed the state department today of a dispatch from British Charge d'Affaires in Mexico City saying that reports were current that General Carranza was planning to destroy the British-owned railroad between Vera Cruz and Mexico City by blowing up certain tunnels.

Although this move has been reported as probable for some time, it may be said to have produced a considerable sensation.

It is remarkable that a former chancellor, which is by no means the most important in the German diplomatic service, should be the head of an embassy which is

ITALY'S POSITION PLEASES GERMANY

Newspaper Comment Shows Favorable Comment to Stand of Neutrality of Italians.

(By Associated Press.)

Berlin, Dec. 5.—Commenting on the declaration of Count Salandra in the Italian chamber of deputies today, the Neudeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says that Italy's attitude in reserving herself the right to take a hand in the political readjustment of Europe so far as her own interests are involved, should make a great impression on Europe.

"Premier Salandra is not clear," says the newspaper, "that Italy's neutrality is self-imposed and voluntary on her part. For this reason Italy has reserved the right to act independently. Should developments distract her position as a bold power, though intent on territorial gains, her policy for all maintained up to the present time, would no longer be binding.

"For the friends and allies of Italy," the Neudeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung continues, "this announcement comes as no surprise.

The Salandra cabinet is sure to have the support of the majority of the Italian parliament for its national policy. Italy's allies realize fully that the Italian kingdom could not be excluded from a European settlement."

HUNTING FORBIDDEN IN PLAGUE SECTION

HARMONY AND JOHNSTOWN
FARMERS GIVE WARNING TO TRESPASSING
NIMRODS.

MUST KEEP DOGS TIED

Wandering Canines May Be Responsible for Spread of Foot and Mouth Disease, Says Sheriff.

Fifty or sixty farmers residing in the towns of Harmony and Johnstown, in the heart of the area afflicted with the foot and mouth disease, have banded together for the purpose of self protection and have issued a warning to hunters strictly forbidding hunting on their property. Some cases in Dane county are reported where the disease was spread through the carelessness of hunters and farmers here are anxious to guard against any such condition.

In addition to the announcement made in another part of the paper the land owners have posted large placards in conspicuous places on their farms notifying all hunters of the danger. Sheriff Whipple issued a warning several weeks ago asking hunters to stay away from quarantined areas, but it was found necessary to extend the area where hunters are forbidden. The action of the farmers shows a willingness to co-operate fully with the federal officials in stamping out the plague, which is now realized to be a serious matter.

Sheriff Whipple today also gave notice that farmers living in the neighborhood of quarantined farms must keep their dogs tied up. There have been numerous complaints that wayfarers canines have been seen on premises where animals are afflicted with the disease, and as the plague may easily be transmitted through them it is advisable to take drastic action. The federal officers have done what they could in this regard and have appealed to Sheriff Whipple to use his influence in warning the owners of dogs to keep their pets shut up. Farmers should realize that if their own herds might be endangered through carelessness in this matter Section 466d of the statutes relating to the trespass of hunters reads as follows:

"Any person who shall enter into any standing grain not his own, with firearms, or permit his dog to enter into any such grain, without the permission of the owner or occupant of the land on which such grain is situated, or any person who shall, without permission of the owner, hunt or shoot on the premises of the owner or shoot on any standing grain used as a pasture for stock, or shall shoot or hunt upon any other land of another after being notified not to hunt or shoot thereon, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than ten dollars, and in default of payment thereof shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten days nor more than thirty days; provided that this section shall not limit or in any way affect civil liability or account of damages sustained. Any owner or occupant of land may give the notice provided for in this section by maintaining signboards, at least one foot square, containing such notice, upon at least every forty acres of the premises sought to be protected, in at least two conspicuous places, or by giving personal, written or verbal notice."

New Cases Reported.

MADISON, Dec. 5.—Two more heads of cattle were found infected with foot and mouth disease at Oregon last night by State Veterinarian O. H. Ellason, and will be killed at once. The cattle was found on the farms of Jesse Hall and Mr. Goggin. The milk from these farms was taken to the Story creamery, and it is now probable that many of the herds have been infected as a result. Dr. Ellason believed that the infection was brought to the Hall farm by hunters. Because the Story creamery has not been pasteurized, it has been ordered closed.

An outbreak of foot and mouth disease has also been discovered on the Clark Harris farm, near Delavan. "In the territory where the disease is prevalent, people should not visit each other's farms," said Dr. Ellason today. To date upward of $65,000 worth of cattle has been slaughtered in this state.

MASON RETURNS FROM THE NORTHERN WOODS

Says That the Hunting Conditions This Year Were Exceptionally Good But Few Violations.

Deputy Game Warden William Mason returned from Ladysmith, where he was stationed during the deer hunting season. He reported that there was ten inches of snow making hunting conditions ideal, and that there were plenty of deer. There were few violations of the law and but one accident, and that before the deer season opened. In every way Mr. Mason thinks, the observance of the state laws was more closely adhered to, and the hunters co-operated with the warden in every way possible.

AGED CONVICT SENDS CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

William Conlin, Sentenced to Waupun Heri Sends Holiday Greet- ing to Racine Friends.

William M. Conlin, the sixty-six year old convict, who is now the state's prisoner at Waupun, serving a three year term, given him by Municipal Court, DePere, February 10th last year for breaking into the home of Rev. Henry Wilmann, has sent Christmas greetings to his friends at Racine.

Conlin, it will be remembered was the aged convict who committed burglary and gave himself to the police, in order to get back home. He was given a "convict" name, "Conlin," and will have served for forty years of his life behind prison bars, which is the longest number of years of record, considering the number of times he has served "bits" in the "slur." Conlin came to Janesville from Racine, where he had gained the number of friends and was given the name of "John" at a banquet of a convivial club of the city. An angle, here-to-for unknown, is that the old convict claims to have deposited in a bank at Halifax, N. S. in his letter to his Racine friends. Conlin declares that if he is able to complete his term at Waupun he will return to Nova Scotia and spend the rest of his days out of prison. By good behavior the man is hoping to shorten his term down to a few weeks over two years.

Authorities who dealt with Conlin, at the time of his conviction here, are inclined to doubt the declaration of his, regarding the money in the Canadian bank. There appears to be no plausible way he could have obtained the money from his parents, who lived at Platteville. They were not found there during his last years of liberty during his life. The story has been given much publicity, but small credit is given it by Janesville people who know the case.

A class in history in school at Kildare was studying Lincoln's Gettysburg address. The teacher asked the class what was meant by the word "redeem." One of the small boys volunteered to answer. "Redeem," he explained, "means raising the money to pay off a church debt."

She would not be able to write that Christmas letter. There had been too many interruptions in the self-imparted education, but some day she would write. There would probably be time enough. It would take even Samson a long while to become an artist.

One day, as she was walking homeward from her lonely trysting place, she met the battered-looking man who carried medicines in his saddlebag, and the scriptures in his pocket, and who practiced both forms of healing through the bibles. The old man draw we're giving' preference to' business. Horton was the most-hated and most-admired man in New York, but the men who hated and shunned him were his own sort, and the men who admired him were those whom he would never meet, and who knew him only through the columns of penny papers. Powerful enemies had caused him to laugh, and began to conspire. He must be silenced! How was a mooted question. But, in some fashion, he must be silenced. Society had not cast him out, but society had shown him in many subtle ways that he was no longer her favorite. He had taken a plebeian stand with the masses. Meanwhile, from various sources, Horton had received warnings of actual personal danger. But at these he had laughed, and no hint of them had reached Adrienne's ears.

One evening, when business had forced the postponement of a dinner engagement with Miss Lescott, he begged her over the telephone to ride with him the following morning.

"I know you are unusually asleep when I'm out and galloping," he laughed, "but you pitched me neck and jib into this burly-bury, and I shoudt have to lose everything. Don't have your horse brought. I want you to try out a new one of mine."

"I think," she answered, "that early morning is the best time to ride. I'll meet you at seven at the Plaza entrance."

They had turned the upper end of the reservoir before Horton drew his mount to a walk and allowed the reins to hang. They had been galloping hard, and conversation had been impracticable.

"I suppose experience should have taught me," began Horton, slowly, "that the most natural thing in the world is to try to torture you, Adrienne. But there are times when one must even risk your delight at one's discomfiture."

"I'm not going to tanzen you this morning," she answered, docilely. "I like the horse too well—and, to be frank, I like you too well!"

"Thank you," smiled Horton. "As usual, you disarm me on the verge of combat. I had served myself for ridicule."

"What have I done now?" inquired the girl, with an innocence which further disarmed him.

"The queen can do no wrong. But even the queen, perhaps more particularly the queen, must give thought to what people are saying."

"What are people saying?"

"The usual unjust things that are said about women in society. You are being constantly seen with an uncouth frank who is secretly a gentleman, however much he may be a man. And malicious tongues are wagging."

The girl stiffened. "I won't swear with you. I know that you are alluding to Samson South, though the description is a slander. I never thought it would be necessary to say such a thing to you, Wilfred, but you are talking like a child."

The young man flushed. "I laid myself open to that," he said, slowly, "and I suppose I should have expected it. God knows I hate ends and knobs. Mr. South is simply, as yet, unchristianized. Otherwise, he would hardly take you, unchaperoned, to—well, let me say to ultra-bohemian resorts, where you are seen by such gossip-mongers as Wilfred Farbush."

"So, that's the specific charge, is it?"

"You, that's the specific charge. Mr. South may be a man of unusual talent and strength. But—he has done what no other man has done—with you. He has caused club gossip, which may easily be twisted and misconstrued."

"Do you fancy that Samson Smith could have taken me to the Wigwam road-house if I had not cared to go with him?"

The man shook his head. "Certainly not! But the fact that you did care to go with him indicates an influence over you which is new. You have not sought the bohemian and unconventional phases of life with your other friends. There is no price under heaven I would not pay for your regard. None the less, I repeat that, at the present moment, I can see only two definitions for this man."

The man shook his head.

"Certainly not! But the fact that you did care to go with him indicates an influence over you which is new. You have not sought the bohemian and unconventional phases of life with your other friends. There is no price under heaven I would not pay for your regard. None the less, I repeat that, at the present moment, I can see only two definitions for this man."

Wilfred Horton found himself at the position of a man whose course lies through rapids, and for the first time in his life his pleasures taffoon!" "Wilfred he is a brawler, or else he is so densely ignorant and churlish that he is unfit to associate with you."

"I make no apologies for Mr. South," she said, "because none are needed. He is a stranger in New York, who knows nothing, and cares nothing about the conventionalities. If I chose to waive them, I think it was my right and my responsibility."

Horton said nothing, and, in a moment Adrienne Lescott's manner changed. She spoke more gently:

"Wilfred, I'm sorry you choose to take this prejudice against the boy. You could have done a great deal to help him. I wanted you to be friends."

"Thank you!" His manner was stiff. "I hardly think we'd hit it off together."

"I believe you are jealous!" she unbroken.

"Of course, I'm jealous," he replied, without evasion. "Possibly, I might have saved time in the first place by avowing my jealousy. I hasten now to make amends. I'm green-eyed."

She laid her gloved fingers lightly on his bridge hand.

"Don't do," she advised; "I'm not in love with him. If I were, it wouldn't matter. He has—"

"A neater, sweater maiden."

"In a greener, cleaner land; He's told me all about her."

Horton shook his head, dubiously.

"I wish to the good Lord, he'd go back to her," he said.

CHAPTER XI.

One afternoon, swinging along Fifth Avenue in his down-town walk, Samson met Mr. Farbush, who fell into step with him, and began to make conversation.

"By the way, South," he suggested after the commonplace had been disposed of, "you'll pardon my little prevarication the other evening about having met you at the Manhattan club?"

"Why was it necessary?" inquired Samson, with a glance of disquieting directness.

"Possibly, it was not necessary, merely politie. Of course," he laughed, "every man knows two kinds of women."

"It's just as well not to discuss the nocturnes with the orchids, or the orchids with the nocturnes."

Samson made no response. But Farbush, meeting his eyes, felt as though he had been contemptuously rubked. His own eyes clouded with an impulse of resentment. But it passed, as he remembered that his plans involved the necessity of winning this boy's confidence.

At the steps of a Fifth Avenue club, Farbush halted.

"Won't you turn in here," he suggested, "and assuage your thirst?"

Samson declined, and walked on. But when, a day or two later, he dropped into the same club with George Lescott, Farbush joined them in the grill—without invitation.

"By the way, Lescott," said the interloper, with an easy assurance upon which the coolness of his reception had no seeming effect, "it won't be long now until ducks are flying south. Will you get off for your customary shooting?"

"I'm afraid not," Lescott's voice became more cordial, as a man's will, whose hobby had been touched. "There are several canyons to be finished for approaching exhibitions. I wish I could go. When the first cold winds begin to sweep down, I get the fever. The prospects are good, too, I understand."

"The best in years! Protection in from high overhead."

"Samson," said Lescott slowly, as he caught the gleam in his friend's eyes, "you've been working too hard. You'll have to take a week off, and try your hand. After you've changed your method from rifle to shotgun, you'll bag your share, and you'll come back fitter for work. I must arrange it."

"As to that," suggested Farbush, in the manner of one regarding the civilities, "Mr. South can run down to the Kenmore. I'll have a card made out for him."

"Don't trouble," demurred Lescott, coolly. "I can fix that up."

"It would be a pleasure," smiled the other. "I sincerely wish I could be there at the same time, but I'm afraid that, like you, Lescott, I shall have to give business the fight of my way. However, when I hear that the flights are beginning, I'll call Mr. South up, and pass the news to him."

Samson had thought it rather singular that he had never met Horton at the Lescott house, though Adrienne spoke of him almost as of a member of the family. However, Samson's visits were usually in his intervals between relays of work and Horton was probably at such times in Wall street.

It did not occur to the mountaineer that the other was intentionally avoiding him. He knew of Wilfred only through Adrienne's eulogistic descriptions, and, from hearsay, liked him.

The months of close application to easel and books had begun to tell on the outdoor man in a softening of muscles and a slight, though noticeable, pallor. The enthusiasm with which he attacked his daily schedule carried him far, and made his progress phenomenal, but he was spending capital of nerve and health, and George Lescott began to fear a breakdown for his protege. He discussed the matter with Adrienne, and the girl began to promote in the boy an interest in the duck-shooting trip—an interest which had already awakened, despite the riflemen's inherent contempt for shotguns.

"I reckon I'd like it, all right," he said, "and I'll bring back some ducks, if I'm lucky."

So, Lescott arranged the outfit, and Samson awaited the news of the coming flight.

That same evening, Farbush dropped into the studio, explaining that he had been buying a picture at Collosso's, and had taken the opportunity to stop by and hand Samson a visitor's card to the Kenmore club. He found the ground of interest fallow, and artfully sowed it with well-chosen anecdotes calculated to stimulate enthusiasm.

Dinner Stories

"I made a mistake," said Pudding Pete. "I told that man up the road I needed a little help 'cause I was lookin' for my family from whom I had been separated for years."

" Didn't that make him come across?"

"He couldn't see it. He said dat he didn't know my family, but he wasn't going to help in bringing any such trouble on 'em."

"These kids I teach aren't a bit slow," observed a school teacher. "In fact, I'm afraid they read the papers. The other day I proposed the following problem to my arithmetic class: 'A rich man dies and leaves $1,000,000. One-sixth of his estate goes to his wife, one-seventh to his daughter, one-eighth to his brother, and the rest to foreign missions. What does each get?'"

"A lawyer" said the littlest boy in the class promptly. "So you want to marry my daughter?"

"Yes, sir."

"Got any money saved up?"

"Could you let me have $5,000 on my unsecured note?"

"I could, but I wouldn't."

"I guess you can take care of her all right. She's yours, my boy, and here's a five-cent cigar."

POLE TO GOVERNMENT ON TAX COLLECTIONS

U. S. INTERNAL REVENUE TAX
GETS JUMP ON LOCAL LEVIES.

COMMENT ON EVENTS

National Advertisers Are Coming to Realize the Value of Newspaper
Medium.

By Ellis B. Ulmer.

Milwaukee, Dec. 5.—The taxpaying nation opened on Tuesday, the new government "war tax" getting the pole on all other local collections. The rush was great, and before night the collector of internal revenue was compelled to telegraph to Washington for $1,000,000 worth of additional revenue stamps. The average citizen will soon realize that this new taxation will hit him about as often as he turns around. In other words, that some of the papers he reads in the "joke" in the war tax law found in the provision that requires a tax upon debts in accordance with the value of the property transferred, which is interpreted as the end of transfer for "$1 and love and affection" and other cabalistic considerations. There are those who see in this another "short hatch" in the "tax dodger." The tax dodger is undoubtedly a most fortunate character, but he is not "the other fellow." A lot of good men who are taxpaying themselves are very severe on the tax dodger. I never knew a man who openly and voluntarily personated that odious personage, but I knew he must be a multitudinous crew, because so many of good repute are always out after him. They make him "the goat" so continuously that it is no wonder they never think of clearing up the other end of the thermometer, putting in the theory that there should be all the various kinds of taxes. It will occur to some of the people who are not once thoughtful and well informed and find themselves caught in the newest trap for the real estate dodger, that the taxes for owning real estate are coming so thick and fast that the day of the single tax on land is not far off. I can not run away from it. Every step we advance in our hunt for the elusive "tax dodger" puts a new burden on land.

Shift Burden on Farmer.

The farmer has scarcely begun to realize the fact, but here in Wisconsin, as elsewhere, he is getting this burden shifted to his shoulders day by day. His tax is growing rapidly into a strangle tax on land and "the other fellow," whose income shrinks in poor times, is slipping from under Copper is paying no dividends now. Railroads are cutting dividends. The Harvester trust is reported to have lost close to $30,000,000 in property, to say nothing of a very large trade in Europe since the war began. "The other fellow," who is a tax dodger, will be harder and harder to locate as he has no land and is "the other fellow," whose income shrinks in poor times. I am not sure the new newspaper, but if I am not right that information and news are all in the direction of broad-gauge and enterprising methods, and what applies to me applies to every other man who is trying to make business for newspapers and do business with them.

The Erie's Agent.

Officially, navigation on the Grand Lake closed last Monday, but there's still a lot of it to be done. The week is looking like it if the Erie Railroad Lake Line would wind up the season in a blaze of glory. I can tell more about it in my next letter.

On Saturday last the Erie Railroad's commercial representative at state, however little, cost of Advertising.

The other day an advertising man in talking to a gathering of Milwaukee advertising men said that it would cost $4,500 for a page in one issue of the Saturday Evening Post, and that this money would buy 6,000 lines in thirty-two Wisconsin newspapers, including two in Milwaukee. One significance of this suggestion is that apparently growing disposition to turn from the editor magazine to the local newspaper for publicity and selling power. Such an amount of space judiciously used would give any enterprising advertiser a wide acquaintance in Wisconsin. I make a third of that amount, in a list of seventeen papers, talk about the Erie railroad for a year. And it pays. Every man who reads this letter will admit that he knows more about the Erie railroad than he did a year ago, and that runs out of Chicago. The Erie's soldiers bear from it when they go out into the state. The test in that the Erie's business grows steadily in Wisconsin. Old friends from out of town, whom I meet occasionally, smile and ask me, "How's the Erie?" and the newspaper boys say "It's a good stunt." Now there's a point that I've been looking for in this letter. The provision here is that I have worked for the Erie, and I have worked for the Erie good, but it has made good, and it illustrates a lot of possibilities that are open and that could be worked for the advantage of advertisers, the profit of the newspapers and the information of the public. If the newspaper would help. The fact that the word "advertisers" has to go over such a paragraph as the one in my letter, to say nothing of absurd, but I have proved that it doesn't do any harm to the reader's understanding and the paragraphs are worth while.

A Hint to Newspapers.

The thing that hurts the local press more than anything is just such a spirit as I ran up against this fall when I undertook to do some political display advertising for Mr. Philipp. I wasn't supporting Mr. Philipp, I wasn't in politics. I was an advertising agent simply and solely ready to do anything to help him. The opportunity I offered the advertising to papers regardless of politics, on the theory that advertising was what they had to sell and what I wanted to buy. But many papers were possessed of the idea that it was a piece of political "pig" that I was handing out, and when they found me cold they ran off to the Philipp campaign managers with a "teller." Many of them put on prohibitory orders, and the result was that there was a very little statewide advertising done, considering the great field of candidates. If the local newspapers want to come into their own, they must sell their legitimate goods as other merchants do, without fear or favor, to the man who wants them. Most of the leading papers of the state do this, but there are some that have local limitations and political limitations that are bound to come in.

I am not sure that the new paper, but if I am not right that information and news are all in the direction of broad-gauge and enterprising methods, and what applies to me applies to every other man who is trying to make business for newspapers and do business with them.

Wisconsin's High School Championships.

Wisconsin has been greatly stirred by the various claimants to the high school football championships. Several schools had clean slates to present at the end of their schedules, which in most cases were representative. The Milwaukee high schools undoubtedly had good teams, but whether West side, the local champion, was strong enough to defend its claim to the state title will never be known. The question was further complicated by the claims of several academies.

During the "post mortem" talk a suggestion was made of a high school football championship to be proposed in it that the state be divided geographically into four sections. The high schools in good standing under present rules shall settle the leadership of their district. Then the four winning teams can meet to settle the state title question. It is a good suggestion. It presents some difficulties, which, however, could be overcome. At any rate the scheme would hurt no one. It should be tried.

Short Notes.

Prof. Solon J. Buck, Berlin, Wis., has been getting rapid advancement recently as a historian, but his last lesson is one that is likely to hold him for some time to come. From the head of the history department at the University of Minnesota he has recently been appointed secretary of the Minnesota Historical society, succeeding Mr. Upham who has held the position for nineteen years and who now succeeds the late Prof. Winslow as archivist of the university. It is hoped that Prof. Buck may have latitude for research work and writing for which he has shown himself so capable.

The motor vehicle taxes up to date this year amount to about $200,000. That is more money than the state tax raised for the university in 1900. That is reinforced this week of the fact that one of Wisconsin's ablest congressmen, the late C. C. Washburn, was strongly opposed to a recent report of the U. S. Geological Survey. It gives the Yukon river fifth place among the great rivers of North America, 47, with tributaries, has a length of 3,000 miles, and drains a basin of 330,000 square miles, an area six times that of Wisconsin.

Afton, Dec. 3.—At the December meeting of the Solid Rock Camp, N. A., in Brinkman's Hall this afternoon, fourteen names for membership were voted upon. It was decided to hold a special meeting Thursday evening, December 17, at which time the election will be initiated. At the meeting this afternoon the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Oracle—Mrs. Holmes.
Vice Oracle—Mrs. Louise Brinkman.
Chancellor—Mrs. Nellie McCrea.
Recorder—Miss Ella Uehling.
Receiver—Mrs. Lizzie Walters.
Marshal—Mrs. Jennie White.
Inner Sentinel—Mrs. Drafahl.
Outer Sentinel—Mrs. Lizzie Eddy.
Paymaster—Eddie, Janesville;
Dr. Kohl, Afton.

One of the most real estate transfers is the sale of J. P. Clarke farm of seventy-nine acres, lying on the edge of the village to Miss Brinkman, proprietor of the Afton creamery. Mr. Brinkman will take possession March 1. Mr. Clarke will move back to Milton, his former home.

know that he is

"on deck for any amount of business that may come along." Talk about the Outer theory of putting a man into the discard at 40.

Here's a Milwaukee Yankee more than twice that, who is one of the best business getters on the Erie payroll, and he's higher up on the payroll than he was three years ago. I've known him as long as it would give me away to tell, but he was a Mississippi steamboat captain when I was in Milwaukee, and then he was a waiter at St. Paul at the Crossroads. Then he tried to quit, but President Underwood knew him and he always on the lookout for young men, so he got him at it again, and I am told confidently that the Erie's redoubtably trained largely to take care of the captain's business. He is six foot tall, straight as an arrow, and he doesn't look any older now than he did twenty-five years ago when he was the man who always led the grand march at the annual chariot bell because he was so handsome and the highest stepper in town.

Religious Rationalism.

One of the most interesting examples of scientific logical reasoning that I have run across for many a day is found in an address delivered before the Phi Beta Kappa association of the city of New York, the Yale University Press has recently published in bound form. It is entitled "Science and Religion" by Prof. Cassius J. Keyser, the Columbia mathematical. It deals mainly with the super-rational as a logical as well as spiritual realm beyond the hold of reason, and refutes the theory that "religion essentially deals with the uncharted regions of human experience." As a purely rational exercise in logic it is attractive and its logical side is very satisfactory, although it is somewhat quite artificial in that of the theodicy, for the word God, as I remember occurs but twice in the entire lecture. It is rationalism of a new and religious character.

Enforcing the Law.

Steps appear to be taken here and at Madison to investigate the activities of the Taxpayers League and some other organizations that were active during the late campaign, including some of those that put religious questions up to the candidates for office and listed anonymous letters attacking candidates upon religious grounds. It is a sad commentary upon our system that "brings the government back to the people." But the way to prove up such laws as we have in great abundance is to enforce them. Let no guilty man escape.

High School Championships.

Several neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Frank Stoney yesterday afternoon for a sewing bee to make much-needed clothing for an afflicted member of the village.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Ulmer, who was injured Wednesday night at the stock yards while loading stock, is resting as easily as possible. It is little less than miraculous he was not much more severely injured. The responsibility rests entirely with the train crew, which crashed into the car being loaded.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Dec. 4.—D. K. Green of Milwaukee, was in the village transacting business for a short time on Friday morning.

One man who for the past few years has made his home in Sackville, Swan, Canada, is visiting among his Wisconsin friends. He was in Orfordville on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ashby came out from the County seat and spent the day with friends in Orfordville on Friday.

Lucette Dickey is spending a few days with friends in Whitewater.

Sol. W. H. of Milwaukee, was in the village a short time on Friday, leaving on the evening train.

The audience that attended the moving picture show held at the opera house a few nights ago, were given a genuine fright when a reel of film caught fire and burned up.

MILTON JUNCTION

Milton Junction, Dec. 5.—Mrs. F. B. Goodrich has returned from a few days spent in Delavan.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church met with Mrs. W. A. Dodd this afternoon.

KEEP IT HANDY FOR RHEUMATISM.

No use to squirm and wince and try to wear out your Rheumatism. It will wear you out instead. Apply some Sloan's Liniment. Need not rub it in—just let it penetrate all through the affected parts, relieve the soreness and draw the pain. You get ease at once and feel so much better you want to go right out and tell other sufferers about Sloan's. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against Colds, Sore and Swollen Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief. Buy a bottle today.

PICTURES FROM SCENE OF EUROPEAN CONFLICT

SOX, MITTENS AND CIGARETS FOR GERMANS IN THE TRENCHES

Preparatory to taking their places in the trenches where they may remain throughout the winter months, the Germans are being well fortified with socks and mittens, knitted by German women's relief societies. Other societies have been engaged in collecting tobacco and cigarettes. The upper photo shows the distribution among German soldiers of heavy socks and mittens; the lower, the distribution by a Red Cross nurse of cigarettes.

FRENCH USE CRANE TO GET HEAVY SHELLS INTO FIELD GUN

So heavy are the shells fired by some of the French field guns that they are loaded into the gun by means of a crane, as is seen in this photo. Note the big bore of the gun. It resembles a safe deposit vault more than anything else. After the shell is rammed home the swinging door is closed. The gun is set in what is known as a well. The gun carriage itself works on wheels so that when set off the recoil carries it backward on a smooth platform.

HOW BRITISH BAYONET CHARGE LOOKS TO GERMANS IN TRENCHES

Look at this picture of some of Scotland's brawny sons rushing to a bayonet attack and then think of yourself as a German in the trenches. Wouldn't it make you a bit nervous? According to reports from Belgium and France the Scottish troops have engaged in several bayonet charges, which were bloody affairs for both sides.

EUROPEAN PEOPLE IN U. S. ARE NUMEROUS

One in Every Seven in the States Was Born Outside Of Our Borders.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—The number of people of European birth and parentage who live in the United States is strikingly brought home in a statement prepared by the National Geographic society, which is keeping its membership of nearly 350,000 informed concerning the geographical phases of the war in Europe. The statement is as follows:

"One person out of every seven in the United States was born outside of our borders. We have today 13,600,000 people of foreign birth with us, and nearly all of them are from Europe. They constitute a population approximately equal to the combined populations of Belgium and Holland, or of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland."

"We have in this country one-sixth as many Canadians as there are in Canada, a half million more Germans than there are in Berlin; enough Irish to populate four cities like Dublin, enough Italians to people three Romes. We have almost as many Russians as there are in Petrograd, and twice as many Austro-Hungarians as there are in Budapest."

"In addition to our foreign born population we have nearly 19,000,000 children of immigrants in the United States. Counting these, we have as many Germans in the United States as there are in Bavaria and Alsace-Lorraine together; more Russians than there are in the province of Bessarabia; more Irish than there are in Ireland; and more than half as many Italians as there are in Sicily. We could populate a city like Chicago with our English-born and their children, duplicate the city of Vienna with our Austrian-born and their children, and more than duplicate all the cities of Sweden having a population of more than 10,000 with our Swedish born and their children."

"Approximately five and a quarter million people came to the United States to stay during the decade between 1900 and 1910. History records no other such great migration as this. Compared with it the Tatar invasion of Russia, the Saracen invasion of southern Europe, and the exodus of the children of Israel were insignificant in numbers."

"The character of the annual influx of new blood from Europe has undergone a very remarkable change in recent decades. During the decade of 1881-1890 the tide of humanity from Europe brought us 1,452,000 Germans and 367,000 Italians. The decade of 1901-1910 brought 341,000 Germans and 2,045,000 Italians. The figures still indicate the falling off of immigration from northwestern Europe and the rise of the tide from southeastern Europe."

"Taking the immigrant population of the United States and their children, we find that their number totals 32,000,000 for 1910, or slightly more than one-third of our entire population. If there be included the grandchildren of immigrants it appears probable that more than half of the people of the United States today are two generations or less removed from alien ancestry. And nearly all of that vast population is of European origin."

KAISER AND CHANCELLOR VISIT HISTORIC HOUSE.

(Correspondence of The A. P.) Sedan, Dec. 5.—Emperor William and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, who were in the vicinity of Sedan Oct. 19th, visited the house at Donchery, near Sedan, where Bismarck first met Napoleon III. Sept. 2nd, visit in the form of gold and their names. Having nothing else upon which to write his, Emperor William borrowed a card from a person of his suite and wrote on the back of it "Wilhelm II, I. R." He knew perfectly who were the two men who came here in Sept. 1870, said Madame Fourcade-Liban, speaking of the visit. "Up to that time I had no idea who was speaking to me. I chatted with them freely and one of them complained bitterly that the French send the Algerians, the Moroccans, the Senegalese and other savages against the Germans. Then the remark of one of the officers in the party revealed the identity of the speaker. It was Emperor William II. Another of the party was Prince Waldeimar, son of Prince Henry. What impressed me most was the most impression of the old lady was the statue of the chancellor, who she thus compares to Bismarck. "He is tall, very tall, but he has not the wicked eyes of Bismarck."

KAISER RECEIVED OLDENDURG CROSS FROM HER HUSBAND

Princess Elizabeth of Oldenburg.

This is the most recent photograph of Princess Elizabeth of Oldenburg, whose husband, a cousin to the Kaiser, has recently decorated the German emperor with the Frederick August cross. In accepting the cross the Kaiser eulogized the Oldenburgs, whose loyalty to the fatherland has never been questioned.

WILL THESE TURK FORTIFICATIONS CRUMBLE BEFORE RUSSIANS?

Ancient fortifications at Constantinople.

This ancient fort and battlement, which seems crumbling with age, is one of the fortifications about Constantinople, and is depended-upon by the Turk to prevent the despised Christians from entering the land of Mohammed. This view is taken from the "Seven Sisters" or Yedi Kulah, looking north.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE PRESIDING OVER COUNCIL OF WAR

Arrow points to Crown Prince.

The German Crown Prince, who has distinguished himself on the field of action and been awarded the Iron Cross by his father, is here shown presiding over a council of war.

BELGIAN CARBINEERS ATTACKING UHLAN RAIDERS NEAR YPRES

A real action scene in this, showing a detachment of Belgian carbineers holding an outpost in the environs of Ypres, where one of the biggest battles of the war is still raging, against a raiding squad of German Uhlans. In the shadow of the shrubbery behind the fenced barricade may be seen the smoke from some of the rifles discharged by the Belgians resisting the Germans.
